

EDMONTON
HERITAGE COUNCIL

EHC
@ 10

2018 ANNUAL REPORT

The Edmonton Heritage Council acknowledges the traditional land upon which we are situated is Treaty 6 Territory. We recognize and thank the diverse Indigenous Peoples whose ancestors footsteps have marked this territory for centuries. We also acknowledge this place as the Métis' homeland, and the home of the largest concentration of Inuit south of the 60th parallel. It is a welcoming place for all peoples who come from around the world to share Edmonton as a home. Together we call upon all of our collective, honoured traditions and spirits to work in building a great city for today and future generations.

2008

- ▶ The Art of Living is approved by City Council, recommending the creation of Edmonton Heritage Council

2009

- ▶ On November 19, the EHC held its founding meeting at the Hotel MacDonald

- ▶ Our first exhibit, Edmonton's Curling Legacy, displayed at the Canadian Olympic Curling Trials

MESSAGE FROM THE BOARD CHAIR

The place we call Edmonton has a rich heritage, with human settlement dating back 11,000 years. From the first Indigenous inhabitants of this land, to recent newcomers from across the globe, it is our privilege to work with Edmontonians to help them tell their stories of this place.

For 10 years now, the Edmonton Heritage Council has been connecting people with the stories of our city. To understand where and who we are as people, we have to know where we came from. For a city that welcomes newcomers every day, it's imperative that we share the history of this place, and that residents know that they are a part of building the heritage of this place every day.

In the last year, the new cultural plan – Connections & Exchanges – has been completed, and it offers a road map forward for our sector in the next decade. We are excited to work with the community to turn this plan into action. We are also appreciative of the increased support from the City of Edmonton that will help us offer more programs, awareness, and grant opportunities in the coming years.

We recognize that heritage encompasses a broad swath of work – incorporating principles of reconciliation and the Calls to Action from the TRC, preserving our built heritage, capturing the stories of immigrant and refugee settlement in recent decades – and that we cannot do this work alone. We are both humbled and excited by this challenge, and look forward to what the next decade will bring.

Alex Abboud
Chair, Board of Directors

Over a decade ago, our city started a conversation about securing the future of arts and heritage in Edmonton. After two years of community consultation, the Edmonton Arts Council published the Art of Living, a bold ten-year plan to strengthen and transform the cultural life of our city.

The Art of Living was the product of many voices. One thing the Art of Living made profoundly clear was the value that citizens placed on preserving, researching, interpreting, and advocating for the history and heritage of our city, and the diverse people that call it home. The Edmonton Heritage Council was born as a recommendation of that plan to lead the development of the heritage sector in Edmonton.

Ten years on, we've grown from a single desk shared in an office, to a robust not-for-profit society serving our members, heritage professionals and volunteers, and all Edmontonians.

We've hosted symposia and conferences. We've convened conversations about museums, archives, historic places, and cultural landscapes. We've grappled with difficult stories about contested pasts. We've explored what it means to work towards truth and reconciliation. We've incubated the idea of a city museum in and of Edmonton. We've launched a robust investment program to help catalyze the growth of heritage work and explore stories long left untold. Above all, we've worked every day to connect citizens to the stories of their city.

As the Art of Living came to an end, our city was again asked to help shape the future of the arts and heritage in Edmonton. Now with Connections & Exchanges, our new ten-year cultural strategy, in hand, we're prepared to build on our momentum and we're looking ahead to the next decade of growth and community connection.

- ▶ EHC publishes the Comprehensive Museums Strategy: Strengthening Edmonton's Museum Sector

- ▶ EHC publishes initial City Museum Development Strategy Report exploring a city museum

- ▶ EHC launches the Edmonton Maps Heritage digital platform

COMMUNITY INVESTMENT, COMMUNITY IMPACT

The Heritage Community Investment Program invests funds—provided by the City of Edmonton—into the stabilization, increased professionalism, and innovation of heritage in Edmonton, for Edmontonians.

2013

- ▶ Heritage Community Investment Program launched with $275,000 from the City of Edmonton

- ▶ EHC hosted the first ECAMP Curiosity Tour exploring Edmonton's untold heritage

- ▶ EHC partnered with Edmonton & District Historical Society to host the City & Memory Symposium

In 2018, the EHC's Heritage Community Investment Program, supported 48 diverse organizations, projects, and individuals, totaling over $500,000 dollars of investment into our community's shared heritage.

HCIP AT WORK

The Cinema Heritage Project

“Not only has the Edmonton Heritage Council helped Metro bridge the financial gap and make our facility historical tours, and cinema heritage minutes, but the EHC’s ongoing work and advocacy makes them seem relevant to our audiences.”

David Cheoros,
Metro Cinema Society

Quinn’s Camera: A Mother and Daughter Reclaim Their Language

“The HCIP grant allowed me to research the connections between Edmonton and my home territory of Nanhkak Thak, in the Inuvik Region of the Northwest Territories.”

Crystal Fraser,
Historian

Edmonton’s Finnish Immigrants Film Documentary Project

“The Finnish Society of Edmonton received a grant from the Edmonton Heritage Council to capture interviews with Edmonton’s Finnish community about their migration experiences. Through the interview process, I realized how many seniors are isolated not only in my community, but in other communities as well. In sharing these stories I hope we can all appreciate the challenges new immigrants and refugees experience and can better support them in Edmonton and Canada.”

Ava Karvonen,
Filmmaker

2015

- ▶ ECAMP micro grant supports RISE and Historian Laureate, Danielle Metcalfe-Chenail, in convening Reconciling Edmonton event at City Hall

- ▶ EHC advances the city museum concept with its Edmonton City Museum Strategy: A Guide for 2015-2022

Workshop West Playwrights' Theatre Archives and Collection Digitization

"The Edmonton Heritage Council Project Accelerator grant allowed us to begin curating, digitizing, and sharing over 40 years of our company's history with the public! Not only did we create a research portal into our history, we were able to re-establish long-lost connections between artists and community members by sharing our work online."

Vern Thiessen,
Workshop West Playwrights Theatre

LIMINAL SPACE | AWASITIPAHASKAN Exhibition Presentation at Indigenous Mapping Workshop in Montreal

"Through the EHC's Heritage Community Investment Program Travel grant I was able to share my creative project and voice with a wider audience and gain valuable knowledge in my field of heritage work. Without this travel grant I would not have been able to participate in the workshop or had the opportunity to extend inspiration as well as receive it."

Marina Hulzenga,
Artist

Operational Funding for Alberta Labour History Institute

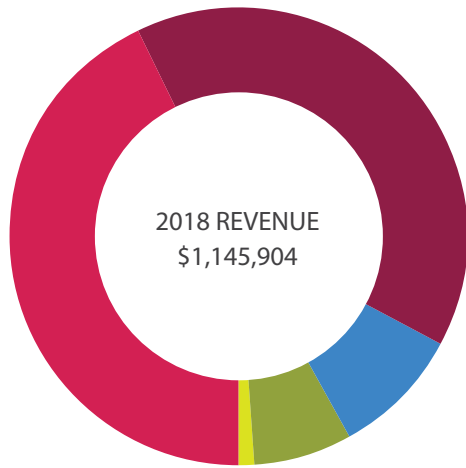

"The HCIP grant to ALHI for our Indigenous Labour History Project kickstarted our exploration of the history of Indigenous people's work in Edmonton. One of the main results has been our interviews with 7 Métis ironworkers who were among the large group of Indigenous workers who built Edmonton's major early skyscrapers, risking and sometimes losing their lives in the process."

Alvin Finkel,
Alberta Labour History Institute

MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Our tenth anniversary is an important milestone for EHC and its members. Amidst the daily stream of heritage work, it is a good opportunity to step back and consider how EHC itself is part of that narrative and landscape. The story of the first ten years of the EHC is a story of discovery, trial and error, growth, community collaboration, and a shared passion for connecting citizens to the stories of their city.

This milestone is a benchmark for other reasons. With The Art of Living plan reaching its conclusion, we are enthusiastic about the direction put forward in Connections & Exchanges, the next ten year cultural strategy. We will do more to put our city's heritage at the forefront of community identity and civic conversations.

We also know the challenges of sustainability facing museums and heritage organizations are far from resolved, but with a new service agreement and increased support from the City of Edmonton through Connections & Exchanges, we see a promising future for heritage organizations and practitioners.

We humbly reflect on EHC's commitment to the work of reconciliation with Indigenous peoples, part of our response to the final Truth & Reconciliation Commission hearings in Edmonton in 2014. We are committed to making progress with other Edmonton heritage organizations on the Calls to Action.

Over the coming year we are excited to advance several initiatives; some new, some we're excited to bring back with renewed vigour. We will be enhancing and refining the Heritage Community Investment Program. We will be re-launching the Edmonton City as Museum concept with new community engagement and storytelling platforms. Broadly, we will enhance our operations to better connect with EHC members and the public through our programs and services to make Edmonton's heritage an essential and more prominent part of the city we love and live in.

We started this journey ten years ago with the aspirations of the larger community and the heritage sector laid out in The Art of Living. We are proud-- and hope you are as well-- to see that growing support and recognition of heritage in Edmonton and the surrounding region.
